Otter Slough Conservation Area is one of only a few examples of a cypress/tupelo swamp left in Missouri and is home to thousands of migrating waterfowl. Although the 4,866-acre area is managed primarily for migratory and wintering waterfowl, many wading birds, shorebirds, eagles, and wetland mammals also make this area their home.

Holly Ridge Conservation Area offers nearly 85 acres of streams and forested hills ideal for hiking, horseback riding, hunting, and wildlife observation. Visitors can explore trails winding through oak and hickory woods, where they can encounter deer, turkeys, and songbirds. With its peaceful setting and diverse wildlife, Holly Ridge is a perfect retreat for outdoor enthusiasts looking to experience the Bootheel’s natural beauty.

Mingo National Wildlife Refuge is a premier destination in the Bootheel for nature lovers and outdoor adventurers alike. A DISTINCTIVE PAST.

DISCOVER DEXTER’S UNIQUE STORY IN THE BOOTHEEL.

When people ask how we got our name, we say it came straight from the horse’s mouth. The story goes that an early settler named Mr. Dex named our city after his horse, Dexter. From our early days as a railroad and timber town, to becoming a farming community, to growing into a place for business and industry, Dexter’s history is as rich and interesting as its future.

At the Dexter Welcome Center Depot and Museum, you are invited to immerse yourself in the rich history of our community. Various displays reflect the stories of families who came before us and the deep-rooted history of the railroad.

The Stars and Stripes National Museum and Library in nearby Bloomfield is committed to preserving the history of the Stars and Stripes Newspaper and the US Armed Forces. Come explore the fascinating stories and pivotal moments that have shaped our nation’s military history. While here, stop by the Bloomfield Veterans Cemetery next to the museum on 65 acres overlooking scenic Crowley’s Ridge.
